FACULTY OF HEALTH BLOGGING POLICY

Blogs are public dialogue, and bloggers are expected to be courteous, and to ensure the accuracy of their posts. Bloggers are expected to obtain consent for all third-party content (including video, images, audio) posted.

The Faculty of Health encourages and supports an open exchange of ideas, however we have zero tolerance for racist, sexist, obscene, hateful threatening and defamatory comments.

Bloggers are expected to abide by the and by the Guidelines for Users of Computing and Information Technology Facilities attached to the Senate Policy on Computing and Information Technology.
Guidelines =
http://www.yorku.ca/secretariat/policies/document.php?document=77#Guidelines

Though we highly encourage an open exchange of ideas, Faculty of Health reserves the right to delete posts or comments that violate the terms of these guidelines. By commenting on our blog you agree that you are fully responsible and legally liable for the content that you post or made through the use of your name and email address, website address, and IP address.

These guidelines apply to York University faculty, staff and students and visitors who post or comment on blogs hosted on the www.yorku.ca.

The Faculty of Health reserves the right to reproduce blog posts in other promotional material. Personal information including posts, images and recordings in connection with this policy are collected under the authority of The York University Act, 1965 and may be used for promoting, publicizing or explaining York University and its activities and for administrative, educational or research purposes.

Bloggers must respect privacy of individuals and abide by the York University Privacy Policy.
York University Privacy Policy = http://www.yorku.ca/web/about_yorku/privacy.html

Material that violates the Criminal Code of Canada or is discriminatory under the Ontario Human Rights Code is prohibited.